

Signatures: An Anthology for Writers

A collection of readings, questions, & writing options about the human self & identity (both personal & public). The authors included here write about the gifts & wounds they've received, the decisions they've made, the dreams they have dreamed. The introductions that open each chapter place the readings into a broader context. The goal is to prompt you to reflect on your self, your life -- in conversation & in writing. In the process, you will be given the chance to consider the various biological, social, & cultural influences that contribute to making you who you are. Includes three themes that invite you to chronicle your life in essays that you may later look on as a celebration of your journey.
